Appeal From Birthplace of Christ

Pope Calls on Christians To Unite, Pilgrimage Ends

By EUGENE LEVIN
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI returned tonight from his "unforgettable pilgrimage" to the Holy Land, where he took bold steps along the path toward Christian unity.

In a climactic speech from Bethlehem, where Christ was born, Pope Paul appealed to world leaders to keep the peace and called on Christians to unite.

Packing history into the last day of his three-day pilgrimage of peace to the Holy Land, the supreme pontiff of 550 million Roman Catholics returned to Jerusalem to join Patriarch Athenagoras I, spiritual leader of world orthodoxy, in praying that their meetings will be a "prelude of things to come for the glory of God."

These were the final highlights of the Pope's unprecedented visit to the Holy Land, for then he drove to Amman, the Jordan capital, and flew back home.

As his historic three-day pilgrimage in the Holy Land neared its end, the 66-year-old pontiff issued greetings of good will to all men—Christian and non-believer. Departing from his prepared text, he called on the world's chiefs of state to press for peace.

The Pope urged Roman Catholics to do all they can to revitalize their Church in the quest for unity and appealed to non-Catholic Christians to join in the cause.

"Today the will of Christ is pressing upon us and obliging us to do all that we can, with love and wisdom, to bring to all Christians the supreme blessing and honor of a united church," he said.

The Pope journeyed the winding road from Jerusalem to Bethlehem on the Feast of Epiphany, commemorating the visit of the three Wise Men to the manger and the first manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles. Pope Paul was the first Roman pontiff known to have visited the spot of the Nativity.

Thousands thronged the town of Christ's birth for the pontiff's historic visit and for Orthodox Christmas Eve services starting three hours after the Pope's visit. But Jordanian troops and police took extraordinary precautions to prevent the mob scene that threatened the Pope's safety in the old city of Jerusalem Saturday.

Coils of barbed wire, iron barriers and rows of armed troops ringed Manger Square outside the Church of the Nativity. Police and troops closed the winding road from Jerusalem long before the Pope's arrival, and only about 2,000 children and other spectators were allowed in the square. But surrounding rooftops and streets were jammed.

Robed in red, Pope Paul stooped to enter the doorway of the old church—less than four feet high—and descended the 16 worn steps to the grotto of the Nativity to celebrate Mass.

The pontiff knelt at the chapel of the manger in the cave, 34 feet by 12 feet. Nearby, sunk in the marble floor, was the 14-point Silver Star of Bethlehem which tradition says marks the spot where Christ was born.

The Pope's voice was loud and resonant as he uttered the ancient words of the Mass. Loudspeakers carried it to the crowd in the church above and to the throng outside.

After the Mass, the Pope moved on to the adjoining Church of St. Catherine to make the major address of his Holy Land visit.

"This is the historic hour in which the Church must live her profound and visible unity," the Pope said.

"It is the hour in which we must correspond with the wish of Jesus Christ 'that they may be perfectly one, so that the world may know, Father, that it is Thou Who has sent me.'"

The pontiff reiterated what the late Pope John XXIII had made clear when he called the Vatican Ecumenical Council for Christian unity—that the Roman Catholic Church would not abandon what it considers basic truths.

tonight before a GOP fund-raising dinner in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Tuesday he turns to the top target in his quest for the nomination: New Hampshire. Goldwater plans to spend three days there, campaigning Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for votes in the March 10 presidential primary, the nation's first of 1964.

Goldwater got in a dig Sunday night at his only announced rival for the nomination, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

"Gov. Rockefeller is used to giving money away and I'm not, that's the difference," Goldwater said in calling for revision of the U.N. charter to force its members to pay their dues or lose their votes.

Goldwater also took a crack at President Johnson, calling his government economy drive a show with little substance.

"He is putting up a good front," the senator said. "The neon lights are blinking and the tilt balls are rolling, but he is not an economist."

Goldwater, one of 19 senators who voted against ratification of the treaty that outlaws nuclear tests in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space, said in the NBC television interview program "Meet the Press" that his vote on the test ban was sound.

"I still think it is of no advantage to the United States," he said. "...The treaty had more accrual of good to the Soviets than it did to the United States..."

"But if you were President and you were able to renounce the treaty, would you do it?" he was asked.

"If it appeared to be to our advantage to test in the atmosphere, yes, I would do it," he said.

HELPS CARRY WOUNDED . . . U.S.

Wall of Fire Poured Upon U.S. Copters

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE
TAN AN, Viet Nam (AP)—An estimated two battalions of Communist guerrillas slipped through encircling South Vietnamese troops before dawn today after battering back a day-long airborne assault.

The Viet Cong sent a wall of machine-gun fire against U.S. helicopters and knocked out an armored personnel car before retreating from their fortifications. The crew of the car was killed by a shell from a recoilless cannon.

American pilots in rocket-firing helicopters believed they killed about 60 guerrillas, although only two bodies were found. One had a Russian rifle. The Viet Cong usually remove the bodies of their dead when they retreat.

The engagement was only 30 miles southwest of Saigon. It was fought in view of passengers in buses and cars along the main north-south highway.

"As usual, they slipped by us last night," a Vietnamese officer said. "We just didn't have enough men to seal them in."

Government troops suffered eight killed and nearly 30 wounded.

It was the third time since New Year's Day that Viet Cong units of battalion strength or more have fought off an attack and escaped.

Most of the U.S. Army helicopters in the operation were hit. One returned with 19 holes.

Two Arrested With Molds Of Fake Coins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Two brothers whose arrest followed a tip by a car prowler will be arraigned here Tuesday on federal charges that they possessed molds and dies used in making counterfeit coins.

Jailed Sunday were Kenneth Callahan, 38, and his brother Dennis, 35. The elder Callahan once broke jail here in company with George Sitts, convicted slayer who later died in the electric chair after two South Dakota law officers were shot to death.

Police Captain Joseph Rusinko said a man telephoned early Sunday, said he broke into a car, saw the coin molds, became frightened and decided to notify authorities. Police and U.S. Secret Service agents staked out the car and arrested the Callahan brothers eight hours later.

In a suitcase one of the men carried were $350 worth of counterfeit silver dollars and 50-cent pieces and some of the 50 plaster molds. A loaded sawed-off shotgun also was found in a suitcase, police said, and Kenneth Callahan carried a revolver.

The pair appeared before U.S. Commissioner Bernard Zimpher, who set bond at $10,000 apiece and scheduled the arraignments.

Detectives said the counterfeit coins recovered were "very good but not perfect."

The brothers had been wanted by police in Santa Ana, Calif., and Seattle, Wash., for questioning in connection with thefts, burglaries and larcenies. The FBI said Kenneth also had been wanted on a federal warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

In 1946, Kenneth Callahan, Sitts and two other inmates engineered the first escape from the Hennepin County Jail here. Callahan was arrested shortly but Sitts, who had been awaiting removal to Stillwater Prison after being convicted of slaying a liquor store clerk, got to South Dakota. There two officers who sought to question Sitts were fatally shot. Sitts eventually was captured in Wyoming and he was put to death by electrocution in Sioux Falls in 1947. He was the first person in South Dakota to die in an electric chair.

Flames Sweep Astor Hotel Big Ballroom

NEW YORK (AP) — An arsonist set a fire that swept the Astor Hotel's grand ballroom today, then fled when chased by hotel employees, officials said.

About 400 guests left their rooms as heavy smoke poured through the 11-story hotel, attracting a huge crowd outside the Times Square area landmark. Damage was estimated at $1 million.

"Thank God nobody was hurt," said William Zeckendorf Jr., an official of the Zeckendorf Hotel Corp. chain of which the Astor is part.

Zeckendorf said the heavily damaged ballroom was renovated about two years ago at a cost of nearly $1 million.

Fire Commissioner Edward Thompson said the fire was definitely set.

"We have two witnesses who actually saw the man start the fire, and we have a good description of him," Thompson said. "These witnesses chased the man but they lost him."

The fire apparently began in draperies along the empty ballroom's lower balcony. It spread quickly to the second and third floors, which at one point threatened to collapse.

As smoke filtered through air shafts, guests left their rooms. Some, still wearing nightclothes, took refuge in the lobby.

Congress Back On Job Tuesday

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress opens Tuesday what promises to be a politically charged election year session with the emotion-packed civil rights issue offering an acid test of President Johnson's leadership.

Johnson is expected to place heavy emphasis on passage of a broad civil rights measure opening new doors to Negroes along with an $11 billion tax cut, health care for the elderly and other domestic proposals in his State of the Union message Wednesday.

These are leftover items from the Kennedy administration. To them Johnson is expected to add some proposals of his own and perhaps some specifics of his promised war on poverty.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield warned his colleagues as they concluded the marathon 1963 session Dec. 30 that it was "just a beginning" of the 88th Congress and that the second session would confront them with "some of the most difficult decisions which this or any Congress is likely to be required to reach."

The House Rules Committee begins hearings on civil rights Thursday. If they drag on, advocates of the bill are expected to push a discharge petition to bring it before the House. The petition had been signed by 170 of the necessary members when the House adjourned.

Supreme Court Will Rule on Virginia Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed today to rule on requests that it take prompt, final action to reopen public schools of Prince Edward County, Va., on a desegregated basis by next September.

County education officials closed Prince Edward public schools in 1959 to avoid court-ordered desegregation.

The Prince Edward racial controversy has been in courts since May 1951. It was one of the original school desegregation cases decided by the Supreme Court in 1954.

In 1955 the Supreme Court returned the case to lower federal courts with instructions that they enforce with all deliberate speed the 1954 decision outlawing school segregation. More litigation followed in federal and Virginia state courts.

The Supreme Court, in an unsigned order, said that "in view of the long delay in the case" since the 1954 decision, and the importance of the questions presented, it will hear arguments March 30 on the case.

Reds Seal Up Berlin Wall Again

By JOHN O. KOEHLER
Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — The East German Communists sealed the Berlin wall again today, ending 17 days of joyous family reunions and heart-breaking partings.

A record number of more than a quarter million West Berliners poured into the Communist zone Sunday — the last day for visits under a Christmas agreement negotiated between the West Berlin city government and the Communist East German regime. The crossings started Dec. 19.

The crush was so big that tens of thousands returning to West Berlin were still waiting at the snow-covered Communist checkpoints when the visiting period expired at midnight.

Authorities said 1,318,000 permits were issued for crossings, but many West Berliners made several trips.

"The honeymoon is over," observed a Westerner.

But there were flickering hopes the West Berlin government could negotiate a new agreement with the Reds in talks scheduled to start this week.

The Western Allies, who are responsible for the security of West Berlin, have given their blessings to the talks. But they have warned Mayor Willy Brandt not to jeopardize the Western stand against recognition of the East German Communist regime.

The Communists have tried to use previous talks to support their theory that there are three Germanys—East, West and a "free city" of Berlin.

They have also been using the reunions to feed their propaganda mill, claiming the crossings were made possible by Communist humanitarianism.

Under the expired agreement, only West Berliners with close relatives were permitted to make the crossings. For many it was their first family reunion since construction of the wall Aug. 13, 1961.

"I wish I had not gone over there," sobbed a 43-year-old West Berlin optician after returning from a reunion with his wife. "The parting with my wife was horrible. We don't know when we will see each other again."

Elevated trains coming from East Berlin's Friedrich Strasse station were packed tightly for the first time in years. The people were quiet or talked only in low voices. The eyes of many women were red from crying.

Goldwater Opens Drive Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater launches his campaign for the White House tonight—after vowing that if he gets there and finds it "to our advantage" he will renounce the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

Rockefeller Says He Won't Be 'Me-Too'er'

ALBANY N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller says that if the Republican party nominates him for president, he will offer voters a clear alternative to Democratic party philosophy.

"There are fundamental differences between my views and (Democratic) views," he said in reply to a charge by Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona that Rockefeller is a "me-too" candidate.

Rockefeller and Goldwater are the only declared candidates for the Republican nomination.

Goldwater announced his candidacy Friday and opened his campaign by saying Rockefeller's views sound more like a Democratic platform than Republican philosophy.

Goldwater, chief spokesman for GOP conservatives, said no other Republican candidate—meaning Rockefeller—could offer voters a genuine alternative to the Democratic administration of President Johnson.

HARRIS SURVEY

Voters Irked By Congress

By LOUIS HARRIS

There is every indication that the American voters are in revolt against the 88th Congress. By nearly 2 to 1, the public registers a vote of no confidence in the job this Congress has done to date.

There is widespread belief Congress has dragged its feet at a time when action was required. Chief blame for the delays is leveled at Southern Democrats generally in the House and Senate, closely followed by congressional committee chairmen and the Republican minority.

Back in October and again just before adjournment, a carefully-drawn cross-section of the public was asked to rate the job Congress had done. Here is the weighted trend among those with opinions (approximately 8 in every 10 people in each case):

Rating of 88th Congress
December	October
Per Cent	Per Cent
Positive ... 35	41
Negative ... 65	59
(Not sure) (22)	(17)

This essentially negative public assessment contrasts sharply with the 76% positive rating accorded President Johnson in his first days in office. Most important, however, is that the trend of public opinion about the nation's top legislative body is distinctly downward.

The 1963 session of Congress may have been the longest in peace-time, but the public impression is that very little was accomplished. Here are the comments as people volunteered them in their own words:

11 Killed in Accidents In Wisconsin

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eleven persons, including four in one crash, lost their lives in a tragic weekend on Wisconsin highways. Their deaths boosted the 1964 state fatality toll to 27, compared with 11 on this date last year.

Lloyd P. Conry, 64, of rural Fond du Lac, Mrs. William Ryan of Brookfield, about 50, and William Nicholas, 18, of Pawcatuck, Conn., were killed Sunday in a head-on crash on Highway 23 in the Fond du Lac County community of Rosendale. Two other persons were injured. Nicholas was a freshman at Ripon College.

Mrs. Britta Felleeson, 54, of Skokie, Ill., died Saturday night and became the fourth victim of a two-car collision on Highway 36 west of Williams Bay in Walworth County. Other victims of the crash were James Davidson, 38, of Wauwatosa, his 34-year-old wife, Irene, and their four-year-old son, Arthur.

Davidson, driver of a station wagon, was the son of one of the founders of the Harley-Davidson Motor Co.

John Jackson, 49, of Milwaukee, was killed Friday night when his car struck a railing beside I-94 about six miles west of Kenosha.

Previously reported victims included Mrs. Florence Meissner, 40, of rural Edgar; Robert Sero, 49, of Lac du Flambeau; and Jacob P. Madsen, 73, of Kenosha.

11-Month Sales Here Decline

Department store sales in Winona during November were the same as during the same month of 1962, according to a report issued today by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis.

In the period from January to November of 1963, sales were 4 percent lower than during the comparable period the year before, the report indicated.

In the state as a whole, while sales for November were the same during the two years, sales in the 11-month period were 3 percent higher than in the same period of 1962.

Rochester's November sales were 10 percent down from November 1962, and were down 4 percent during the first 11 months of the year, compared with the first 11 months of 1962.

La Crosse was down 5 percent from 1962 in November sales, and showed a drop of 2 percent during the first 11 months of the year.

Hunt for Lost Plane in 5th Day in Pacific

HONOLULU (AP) — A massive search of half a million miles of the Pacific for a downed Air Force C124 Globemaster and the nine men aboard, entered its fifth day today with no positive trace of the lost men.

The hunt was intensified during daylight hours Sunday in the greatest effort so far for the eight airmen and one sailor, who disappeared Thursday on a flight from Wake Island to Honolulu.

Hopes were raised when search planes reported hearing distress signals and sighting debris.

The first of these reports was termed "of no significance" when it was established the two signals came from outside the area where the plane could have crashed, an Air Force spokesman said.

The other report, that debris was sighted 167 miles southwest of Honolulu, was being investigated.

The plane, with a crew of eight and a Navy passenger escorting the body of a sailor, was last heard from Wednesday night after a radio check with Hickam Air Force Base, Hawaii.

Chance Vought Ordered Released

NEW YORK (AP) — Aircraft heir Chance M. Vought, who has served 16 months for non-support, has been ordered released from jail because of his health. State Supreme Court Justice Francis J. McCaffrey said Friday he reached his decision "with reluctance, as the history of this litigation is replete with the defendants failure to comply with orders of this court."

Vought, 34, was sent to jail for being $6,000 behind in support payments for his wife, Eugenie, and their two children. The Voughts were separated in 1957 and he was ordered to pay $250 a week to his family.

Have They Found a 'Famous' Cave at Witoka?

Engineer Says It May Be Real Curiosity

By GEORGE McCORMICK
Daily News Staff Writer

There's an underground fairyland beneath a hillside a mile or two west of Witoka.

Most fairylands are beautiful . . . and this one is. A dark, low passageway will suddenly open into a vaulting chamber, its roof encrusted with sparkling white calcium deposits and festooned with stalactites. Grotesque and often fanciful rock formations catch your probing light and cast weird shadows.

BUT ANYONE familiar with the Brothers Grimm knows that fairylands often are at least potentially dangerous . . . and this one is. The floors are covered with slippery clay that makes climbing difficult and a misstep easy. Low tunnels and narrow passages make getting about a problem. Pits open almost beneath your feet. In three spots, the roof is not sound.

For two Illinois men, however, this subterranean fairyland holds promise of making Winona a tourist attraction throughout the country — and making them rich in the process.

The two stumbled on the cavern almost by accident after months of fruitless searching only a short distance away. Since then, they've dug away piles of the clay that filled many of the chambers and passageways inside the cave. As they go along, they keep finding more and more passageways, leading to more and more rooms, each with still more passageways leading even further.

RICHARD DICKENS and Ed Van Hook have big plans for their find.

They have named the network of passages Hiawatha Caverns. An Illinois firm has been hired to help them clear out the clay that fills the cave. Concessions have been planned for the area around the cave's mouth, and the two hope to get things started this spring.

The new, four-lane Interstate 80, which will be built near the cave site, is expected to bring hordes of tourists to the area.

But a lot has to be done first. Dickens and Van Hook guided a group of newsmen through the caves last week. For more than two hours, the group clambered over rocks, snaked through tunnels, and dodged stalactites.

For more than two hours also, the group wondered at the beauties of the cave and began to share some of the visions the two developers have for its future.

IT WAS A fascinating tour, although one definitely not recommended for sufferers from claustrophobia. The visitors saw stalactites that glowed with a rich, warm color when a light was shone through them. They saw an underground river bed that is filled with rushing water in the spring.

Each way the visitors would turn, they would see more possibilities. The cave is small now, but it's hard to tell just what might lie beneath the muck that now fills much of it. There now are many passages into which you can look for more than 20 feet. Some of these clearly have large chambers at their ends.

The air in the cave will be no problem for the developers, for it's constantly fresh and its temperature hovers consistently around 50 to 60 degrees. Even when the group paused in a large chamber for a smoke, the air remained fresh. The smoke from the cigarettes rose . . . and disappeared. Despite this, the cave isn't drafty.

Right now, a visitor can go into the cave for more than 100 feet. The part that has been opened up is from 30 to 60 feet beneath the surface of the ground, except for the part near the cave's entrance.

AN URBANA, Ill., engineering firm recently completed a survey of the cave, and pronounced it safe, except for three small parts (into which the newsmen ventured anyway) where the roof isn't sound.

But something else the engineer said excited Dickens and Van Hook more than his declaration of the cave's safety. His report indicated that he felt the cave to date back to the Lower Ordovician period of the Paleozoic Era.

This would make it anywhere from 440 to 520 million—yes million—years old. Like many caves, this one near Witoka. Two Illinois men hope to develop the cavern as a tourist attraction. (Daily News photos by Frank Brueske)

FIRST EXPLORER . . . Carl Douglas, who lives on the farm next to that in which the cave is situated, climbs out of the shaft leading into the cavern. The 17-year-old last year was the first person to enter the cave and discover the large chambers it includes.

CLEARING ENTRANCE . . . Dickens and his partner, Ed Van Hook, clear clay from the entrance to the cavern. Before they started the work, entrance had to be gained through a vertical hole, about the size of a well shaft.

CAVE ENTRANCE . . . The mouth of the cave, which its developers have named Hiawatha Caverns, is situated near the top of a hill a short distance west of Witoka. Originally just a shaft near where the sign now stands, the entrance has been enlarged to permit easier access to the cavern.

EXAMINES ROOF . . . Richard Dickens, one of the men hoping to develop the cave, stops inside a chamber to examine stalactite is a two-generation formation. The older represents the pre-St. Peter solution, according to the engineer's report, and the younger is the time when the clay deposition occurred.

According to Van Hook and Dickens, the engineer said that for more than 100 years geologists have been expecting to find a cave representing the pre-St. Peter solution — that is, dating back as far as this one seems to — but none ever has turned up.

If this is one — and the engineer is convinced that it is, the developers assert — it could be of vast interest to geologists and spelunkers (amateur cave explorers) everywhere.

If not, it still may make its developers some money . . . if nothing else, because of its future location near the route of the interstate highway.

THE WAY IN which Dickens and Van Hook found the cave fits well with the romantic aura of the entire venture. Dickens, a cement contractor and salesman from New Boston, Ill., was master of the small town's Masonic lodge. He met another member, Abraham Bringold, and began visiting the man, who is in his 80s.

On these visits, Bringold continually urged Dickens to buy 160 acres of wooded land the old man owned in Minnesota, where he had been a real estate speculator many years before. Dickens, never having been to this state and having no interest in changing that state of affairs, kept putting Bringold off — until two things happened.

Dickens began to realize that Bringold was hinting at something valuable in, on, around, or under the land he wanted his friend to buy. At about the same time, Dickens talked the situation over with Ed Van Hook, another New Boston man. Van Hook was a mate on a towboat and had passed the Minnesota hills many times.

THE TWIN MEET . . . In many places in the cave's chambers, stalactites have met stalagmites, forming column-like deposits.

The formations are caused by deposits of calcium carbonate, carried in water dripping from the roofs or sides of caves.

Each time, he had looked at them and wished he could get off his boat and tramp about. This looked like his chance.

THE TWO MEN bought the 160-acre tract sight unseen and came north to look it over. This was almost a year ago. It took them two months even to find it, but as soon as they had, they began to look for a cave which a neighbor told them was on their newly acquired land.

All they found was "crevices that led to nowhere."

Just about the time they were ready to give up, a chance encounter with Bill Sillman, Winona County soil conservationist, occurred. Sillman told them that there was a "cave full of iceles" on the farm next to the one they bought.

They went to that farm's owner, Edward Neitzke, and secured permission to explore the cave. Neitzke had discovered the cavern a couple of years before, when a portion of his land suddenly began to sink. Eventually, a shaft into the ground opened up, and Neitzke, fearful of losing stock and neighbors, was about to fill the shaft and cover the pit when Dickens and Van Hook approached him.

THE ILLINOIS MEN explored the cave, and they talked with the first person ever to enter the first chamber — Carl Douglas, son of Donald Douglas, a neighbor of the Neitzkes.

Douglas, then 16 years old, had pulled out the logs that Neitzke had put into the cave entrance and had entered the chamber about a year before the Illinois men arrived on the scene.

Dickens and Van Hook were excited by what they found, and they arranged a lease with options extending 99 years on the cave and the surrounding land. Then they went to work.

The two now are working with the enthusiasm of evangelists — both at digging and at promoting their find. Leaving

Hot Ashes Blamed for Landfill Fire

Caution should be used by persons hauling hot ashes to the city's sanitary landfill on Homer Road, department of health officials said today.

Live coals in such loads were blamed for a series of fires at the landfill site Saturday. Firemen worked four hours to control flames which broke out about noon.

If attendants are informed about ashes being dumped along with other refuse, they can isolate the load so fires cannot start. Once a fire starts, attendants must excavate surrounding areas, expose previously buried trash and make sure no underground fires are ignited.

Smokers also are asked to use care in disposing of cigarettes. Technically, anyone responsible for starting a fire can be prosecuted under the city ordinance prohibiting burning at the landfill, officials said.

Notice to Water Consumers First Meter District

The First Meter District includes the area from the Center Line of Grand St. to the West city limits and from the North city limits to the South city limits. Water bills for this Meter District did become delinquent on January 1, 1964. If these delinquent water bills are not paid before January 11, 1964, the water will be shut off from the delinquent premises for non-payment of water rentals.

Lincoln's Bed Is 'Sorta Old'

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK—Carol Channing finally got to see the Lincoln bed in the White House. Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson arranged it when Carol was in Washington with the show "Hello, Dolly!" Carol had been a guest of the John F. Kennedy's at the White House about a year ago, and the late President had asked his guests if they'd like to see where Lincoln slept. All had replied enthusiastically that they would. But when they got there, President Kennedy said, "Ssssh! My mother's sleeping in there."

Recalling their disappointment, the present First Lady arranged to have an aide take Carol to view the Lincoln bed while the Johnsons were in Texas. Carol's comment was: "In such a modern city, I didn't expect to see 100-year-old furniture."

Darryl Zanuck's beautiful red-head protégée, Irina Demich, complained recently in filming a love scene in "The Visit" in Rome that German actor Hans-Christiaan Blech and kissed her up and down her arms in rehearsals—but wasn't now.

While Anthony Quinn and Ingrid Bergman were listening, Irina said she'd liked that arm-kissing. "I'd forgotten it—we rehearsed that over four weeks ago," said Director Bernhard Wicki.

"It's not the kind of a thing," Irina answered, "that a woman forgets."

"THE WILD-LIFE Game": a parrot, alone in the house, and not feeling well, decided to phone a veterinarian. He chortled to himself about how surprised the vet would be to hear him calling. He dialed with his beak and this conversation followed: "Hello." "I would like to speak to the veterinarian." "He is not home." "Then who is speaking?" "His parrot."

Jane Fonda says a modern girl is one who, when warned, "You're going to hate yourself tomorrow," replied, "I hope so—or I'll have a very dull time tonight."

Did you hear about the benevolent boss who wanted to start the New Year right with his habitually-tardy secretary? So he greeted her, "Congratulations, Marie! This is the first time that you have come to work so late so early!"

Oscar Homolka about Hollywood's No. 1 hypochondriac: "If he could just become fatally ill, he would die happy!"

Old but still good: "Dean, sir, you have such a wonderful campus, such a beautiful college. How many students do you have?" About one to a thousand."

BWAY TICKET brokers say there are two sides to their sad story. They report this alleged dialogue between a broker and customer:

Broker: Why do you try to beat me down on these prices? You know you're never going to pay your account.

Customer: Because I'm an honest man. I don't want you to lose more than it's absolutely necessary that I cheat you out of.

Victor Borge told Hugh Downs he had always dreamed of getting his TV around to the point where he could do one special a year for $100,000, then to a point where he could do one every 10 years for $1 million. Despite his saying this, he is now negotiating to do several a year, because, evidently, he doesn't really like leisure. A mother was trying to play it modest. "When your son played Chopin tonight," said a neighbor, "it really sounded beautiful!" "Yes," said the mother. "That boy will make something out of everything that he plays."

Joey Bishop was phoned by a young comedian named Bobby Bell who asked him, "Just as a matter of advice, do you think I should do the Steve Allen show?" Bishop answered: "Of course" Bobby Bell said, "Then why don't you tell him?"

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Today's a really big day. This is when Dean Martin starts his party for next year.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "The trouble with some people who have nothing to say is that they usually meet someone who persuades them to say it." —Aton.

EARL'S PEARLS: The best way to remember your anniversary is to forget it just once.

Danny Davis hopes Christmas trees will be cheaper next year: "I asked for a $3 tree, and the clerk said, 'Of course, sir—shall we send it, or will you wear it in your lapel?'" That's earl, brother.

Burglar Picks Wrong Taxi

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Edward A. Ellis, 42, woke up Sunday morning and heard someone prowling through his apartment. Wearing only his undershorts, Ellis chased the burglar into the street.

The robber dropped Ellis' wallet, hoping it would lure him to stop. It didn't.

The thief got to Biscayne Boulevard, one of Miami's main streets, and hailed a cab, with Ellis only a few steps behind.

Driver Henry Simpson, a retired police officer, calmly drove his passenger to the nearest squad car. Marion Anderson, 28, was charged with burglary.

DEAR ABBY:

Do Without This 'Friend'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A friend took me to a card reader yesterday just for fun, and I haven't been able to sleep a wink since. Although I don't have any confidence in this woman's ability to read the future, she knocked me right off my feet. She said that my husband was going to die shortly, that he had been having blackouts at work but didn't want to tell me for fear of worrying me. She said I shouldn't let on that I know because it might upset him and he might die sooner. She also said someone wished me bad luck and she could break the spell by selling me some good luck charms at $10.00 each for myself and my children. (I didn't buy any. I think she's nuts.) She charges $5.00 a reading. I'd like to report this woman. But where?

DEAR DISTURBED: Start with your local District Attorney. The "reader" sounds like a public nuisance. The "friend" sounds like an enemy.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl who has been wearing eyeglasses since I was 6. I have to wear them all the time now, for reading, writing, watching TV and for seeing things far away, too. My problem is the ugly red marks I get on my face. Do you know of any creams or treatments that will take off those terrible red marks?

DEAR MARKED: Go to your optician and ask him to check your eyeglasses. If they fit properly, they should not make ugly red marks on your face.

DEAR ABBY: I read your reply to "JERSEY IN KOREA," who was having such a rough time being true to his wife back in the States. He must be in the Army or Air Force. I am a Marine Sgt., who is away from my family, too, and it will be a long time before I get home, but I'm not having that problem. You see, Abby, my father was on the road a lot when I was a kid and I asked him that same question. His answer to me has been my comfort these lonely nights. "Son," he said, "can you see me eating from the garbage can when I can look forward to a good meal served by your sweet and clean mother?"

Sincerely,
JIM, U. S. M. C.

DEAR ABBY: My son thinks it is improper to give his intended wife an engagement ring until after she has received her final decree of divorce from her present husband. I disagree with him, especially since they have plans to marry immediately after the decree is granted. We have decided to go along with your opinion. Thank you.

HAPPY MOTHER-IN-LAW-TO-BE

DEAR HAPPY: I agree with your son.

Minneapolis Man And Son Found Dead in Plane

LA PORTE, Ind. (AP) — The bodies of a Minneapolis advertising man and his son were found Saturday evening in the wreckage of their single-engine plane.

The victims, Edward Dolan, 56, and Lawrence Dolan, 27, vanished in severe weather last Sunday night on a flight from Minneapolis to Pittsburgh.

The wreckage was found in a field in a rolling, sparsely populated farm area three miles east of this northwestern Indiana city. It was identified through its serial number.

Relatives were summoned to confirm the identifications. The Dolans were last heard from Sunday night, when the elder Dolan radioed a flight service center in South Bend that he had landed at the La Porte airport and was terminating his flight plan because of turbulent weather.

However, two farmers reported Saturday they had seen a small plane later that night circling, its engine sputtering and its landing lights on a few miles south of the crash scene. Deputy Sheriff Robert Blake said the plane's left wing had hit the ground and snapped off as the craft plunged into the farm field.

NASON ON EDUCATION

He Quit Trying In Fifth Grade

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed. D.
Professor of Education,
University of Southern California

Failure of a child to master the fundamentals in school often is hidden, rather than revealed, by testing programs.

For example, Sam's plight was not made clear to his parents over a period of six long years, in spite of all the testing to which he was subjected.

As required by law, Sam had attended school regularly. Now in the 11th grade, and 16 years old, he could no longer be compelled to attend.

I asked Sam, "What happened, perhaps in the fifth grade?" "It was in the fifth grade," he answered, "and I remember deciding the whole thing was too much effort, I quit trying."

Since then, Sam had coasted. He had done his homework after a fashion when his parents insisted, but he had not really tried to learn and understand. He had just gone through the motions.

HOW COULD this happen in our "modern" schools? Here, at last, are some explanations.

• Compulsory school attendance does not mean compulsory learning.

• Testing programs hide the failure. Comparisons with national norms are made with the median or middle scores. But these comparisons do not take into account how far down some of those in the bottom half are. On the basis of median scores the school system at which Sam attended could boast of being above the national norm in spite of lagging students like Sam.

• Automatic promotions eliminate the necessity of meeting the issue of competence head-on at the end of each school year. At no time was it necessary for the school to report to Sam's parents the actual grade level at which he was performing.

Recent results of California's first year statewide testing program have started bitter arguments. But here, as elsewhere, the arguments center on the progress of the middle student. No one seems to ask, for example, "Do the tests indicate that the lock-step system of promotions produced a sizable group of laggards?"

THE STATE superintendent of public instruction, Max Rafferty, who reported on the testing results to the State Board of Education, emphasized that California children, while superior in achievement to national norms, should do better in view of their higher average intelligence quotient.

The board, on the other hand, objected to any interpretation which would take credit from "the job the schools are doing."

No report was made on how many are leaving school with a reading ability below the fifth grade, which might well make them unemployable. In fact, there are indications that less than eighth-grade reading ability may be a severe handicap in seeking employment.

THIS ISSUE should be faced well before the end of the compulsory attendance period. At least by the start of the seventh grade, while there is still time, students should be grouped on the basis of their actual performance in arithmetic, reading, and English, and parents should be accurately informed.

Promotions from this point on should be based on performance only. Junior and senior high school years are the last

President of Ghana Praises Nikita Policies

MOSCOW (AP) — President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, who will be host to Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai this month, has enthusiastically praised Soviet Premier Khrushchev's policies which have been under sharp attack by Peking.

In an apparent contradiction of Chinese claims to represent the interests of the African and Asian nations, Nkrumah lauded Khrushchev's "deep analysis" of the problems of the national liberation movements.

His remarks in an interview were published by the Soviet newspaper Pravda.

No need to frost a banana cake if you serve it soon after it comes from the oven. Treat it like a pudding: cut it in squares and pass a lemon sauce. The pudding-cake make be further embellished for company by adding an extra accompaniment of whipped cream or whipped soft cream cheese. A little finely grated lemon rind will look pretty sprinkled over the cream or cheese.

preparation years for many students.

Educators and parents should insist that children face up to their individual short comings and make the necessary effort to overcome them.

The Story of a Bank Is the Story of People

... THE PEOPLE WHO WORK IN THE BANK
... THE PEOPLE WHOM IT SERVES

We like to believe that our growth, particularly in recent years, has been the result of neighborly personalized attention to the problems of each customer. This kind of personal attention is exactly what every staff member, every officer, every director, sets as his contribution to developing a high standard of service.

As a community good neighbor, our most important aim is to provide the best possible banking service to meet our customers' needs. They will tell you that "person-to-person banking" describes the friendly way in which we serve them. Referred by old friends, new customers come in, become acquainted and they, too, become old friends. It's all because of the neighborly way we do business ... it's pleasant, it's satisfying, it's convenient ... but above all, it's neighborly. That's why we are proud to use the slogan "Good Neighbor Since 1874."

The policies which direct us as "Your Good Neighbor" demand that we work in every way possible to help business, industry and farming, as well as the individual citizens of our area, to create and reflect good times and continued progress. May we help you in jointly accomplishing this objective?

Quie, Back in Home District, Discusses Issues

AS THE new year 1964 takes its first infant steps, Minnesota newsmen with eyes on next fall's election want to know:

- Why the First Session of the 88th Congress seemed "unproductive."
- If the recent discharge petition was damaging to bipartisan support of Civil Rights legislation.
- If there are prospects for better farm legislation.
- What the chances are now of a tax cut.
- If President Kennedy's death has changed chances of legislation passage.
- And, on the local front, how home-town communities can benefit from recently passed, important education bills.

These were the questions most asked by Minnesota newsmen in an end of the session "press conference by mail" conducted by Congressman Albert H. Quie, First District Republican.

WITH THE longest session of Congress since the Korean War making earlier personal appearances in the First District difficult, Congressman Quie used the mail press conference as half of a two-part program of reporting to his constituents.

The second phase of the congressman's report to constituents will be an intensive, 11-day tour of the First District. He will cover all 12 counties in the period from Jan. 2 to 11 and is scheduled in Winona, Wabasha, Houston and Fillmore counties Jan. 10-11.

The congressman said he will see as many persons as possible on the whirlwind tour. He will hold "office hours" for face to face discussions with individual constituents in each county. He will also speak at several meetings of service clubs, school groups and women's organizations.

"BECAUSE THIS has been a long and sometimes confusing session, faced with very complex legislation, I am taking every possible opportunity to report its activities to my constituents," he said.

He said that the questions asked by newsmen closely parallel questions asked by constituents in his daily mail.

Congressman Quie outlined his stand on each of these "most asked" questions.

On the "unproductivity" of the First Session of the 88th Congress — "I'm not so sure it was as unproductive as it might have seemed," he said. "A Congress cannot be judged only by the number of bills it passes." But, he said, some good legislation was passed and groundwork was laid for further legislative progress. However, he agreed that some changes in the rules of Congress might be effective.

Was the recent discharge petition damaging to bi-partisan support of civil rights legislation? "Yes," said the First District Congressman. "The discharge petition was meaningless at this time . . . when a coalition is formed, one side should not take political advantage of it . . . but the present civil rights bill is a good one and I'll support it as it stands."

ARE THERE prospects for better farm legislation? The congressman again answered yes — as the result of developments which have occurred within the last few weeks.

What really happened in the battle over the Foreign Aid bill? According to Quie, the final foreign aid appropriation was what had been planned by both parties and accepted by the Administration for months . . . and the battle which developed in the final days of the session was caused not by foreign aid, but by a rider to the bill concerning the controversial wheat sale to the Soviet Union.

What are the chances of a tax cut? Much improved, he said, based on the proof that Congress will cut spending and President Johnson's pledge of governmental "thrift and frugality."

Has President Kennedy's death changed the chances of various legislation passage?

Again yes, according to the congressman. And, surprisingly, some of the late President's favored legislation may now stand a better chance of passage.

HOW CAN hometown communities obtain benefits from recently passed, important education bills? Congressman Quie, a member of the House Education and Labor Committee, played a key part in development of the two major education bills of this session affecting college construction and vocational education. He said he will continue to explain how these bills will affect the First District and Minnesota.

2 BIG PUSHES

Rockefeller Out To Win Votes

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
WASHINGTON — The Rockefeller people are putting in two massive pushes in this new year. The first and obvious one is a powerfully financed and heavily staffed thrust to blitz the Republican primaries to rescue their man, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, from his somewhat lagging position in the race for the 1964 Republican Presidential nomination.

The second drive is not so obvious. Its aim is truly to convince Republican leaders all over the country that Rockefeller means this time to go the whole way in his quest for the nomination. His on-again, off-again challenge to Richard M. Nixon in 1960 left some of his supporters painfully out on a limb when finally he withdrew from the contest.

THOSE WHO now back his campaign are well aware that these are still hurling memories. Accordingly they are taxing every possible step to assure all uncommitted Republicans, and certainly all Republicans even remotely favorable to Rockefeller in the past, that 1964 will be no 1960. "Rocky," they are saying, "is in this race to stay."

And there can hardly be any rational doubt that what they are saying is the undoubted truth. The governor already has committed himself to GOP primaries as far apart as New Hampshire, California and Oregon. The Rockefeller campaign organization, already bursting with experts in politics, public relations, program planning and all the rest, is to be strengthened still more. There are many pros in the Rockefeller stable and many gifted amateurs; there will soon be more of each.

ROCKEFELLER staff men do not discourage the notion, indeed, that their purpose is a total, saturation offensive for him strongly reminiscent of the most powerful, most determined and well-financed pre-convention presidential drive heretofore made — that of the Kennedy forces in 1959 and 1960.

No sensible onlooker can doubt that the vast Rockefeller fortune is, this time, committed to the end. And no sensible onlooker, within the Republican party or outside of it, can doubt the governor's ability to make wise use of what will be the biggest corps of advisers ever assembled for a political contest. Already, three large offices are required in New York City alone — and soon a "national headquarters" is to be superimposed upon these.

ROCKEFELLER has always thought of himself as essentially executive-minded; that is, as a sensible employer of the skills and talents of others. And this self-estimate is undeniably sound.

Still, the road ahead of him seems, on any objective analysis, to be an uphill one, and to this observer the race for the GOP nomination still appears to lie between Nixon and Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania. Some Rockefeller advisers believe that some of the edge of disapproval of the governor's divorce and remarriage may have been removed by the announcement of the expected June birth of a child to the Rockefellers. This undeniably warm and humanly appealing event may, indeed, have some effect.

All the same, Rockefeller's fundamental political problem has in no way been eased. In the end he must stand before the convention as a liberal, Eastern-based Republican. Considering President Johnson's extraordinary success to date in drawing all shades of liberal Democrats to him, along with the conservatives and moderates who have always stood with him, questions are bound to arise: Will the conservative and moderate Republicans find any real opportunity for choice as between Rockefeller and Johnson?

WILL MANY of them not actually prefer Johnson if Rockefeller is to be the party's sole alternative, since Johnson's liberalism on social issues is matched by a demonstrated prudence and frugality in public spending? And can Rockefeller's often-asserted but never really tested appeal to the urban East be enough, given his obviously weak capacity to challenge Johnson in the South, West and Midwest?

THE WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pope's Pilgrimage Start Toward Healing Old Sores

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Pope Paul VI is touring a land where hatreds run deep but where the hopes for man's understanding of man could run strong. It is a land where Christ told men to love thy neighbor as thyself, but where Arab sentries peer out of machinegun turrets across a no man's land strewn with barbed wire and the bleak skeletons of bombed-out homes. No living thing stirs in that no man's land except a stray ass or a goat.

And at Christ's Holy Sepulchre, holiest of Christian shrines, where the Pope knelt, Arab guards long were posted to prevent members of rival Christian faiths from stabbing each other as they knelt in prayer. Though they worshipped at the tomb of the man who taught love, they killed each other over the technical details of his theology.

I have visited the Holy Sepulchre. It is cramped and gives you a feeling of claustrophobia as you recall the murders that have been committed in his name and over his body.

But the Arab guard has been removed now, as at least one small step in the ability of Christians to pay tribute to Christ in peace.

Up beyond the Mount of Olives from which Christ rose after the crucifixion is Mount Scopus where Hadassah, the efficient organization of Jewish women, has built a modern hospital. It is built on Israeli soil. But all around it is Jordanian territory, so that no supplies or personnel, except a couple of caretakers, can reach this Israeli island. There, in splendid isolation, stands this citadel of modern medicine, empty, useless — a monument of humanitarianism in a land of hate.

SOME YEARS AGO the Rabbi of Jerusalem, Isaac Herzog, told me that the hospital should be opened to Arab patients as an Israeli gesture of peace and friendship to the Arab world. The reaction in Israel at that time was not good. As Pope Paul drove to Jerusalem from Amman (once called Philadelphia), the capital of Jordan, he passed the ancient city of Jericho, no longer surrounded by walls, near which is one of the largest camps of Palestinian refugees. Some 30,000 were camped there when I visited Jericho several years ago. Probably there are 50,000 now, because of the birth rate and the Arab policy of keeping the refugees idle as a political threat to Israel.

The unwritten law of the Arab countries is that no Palestinian refugee shall plant his roots in Arab soil. He shall wait for the day when he can go back to what is now Israel.

ONE REFUGEE from Jericho had violated this code, had drilled a well, struck water and developed a prosperous plantation at which he employed about 1,000 of his fellow refugees. But on the anniversary of the founding of Israel, several thousand refugees from Jericho marched on his plantation, tore up his banana trees, destroyed his chicken houses, broke up his refrigerating apparatus, and doubtless would have killed him had he been there.

He had broken the code that no refugee shall plant his roots in Arab soil.

Traveling from old Jerusalem to the new, Pope Paul passed through the famous Mandelbaum gate into Israeli territory. No Jew is permitted through that war-scarred portal. The buildings on either side are empty, pock-marked skeletons of hate.

BUT WHEN I passed through some time ago, the Arab guard helped carry my heavy suitcase, and when he got to the Israeli side he said hello to the Israeli guard. The Israeli guard said hello to him. There was no enmity between them.

Nor is there enmity on the part of Jews toward the Arabs, nor by the average Arab toward the Jews, unless his emotions are aroused by Arab politicians at the top.

Israeli scientists have offered the Arab world the results of their research on tropical diseases, on the eradication of the fly and the mosquito. The Arab leaders insist on a rigid wall of no cooperation.

The Arab refusal to recognize Israel is somewhat like the West German refusal to recognize East Germany. Both exist. Both are surrounded by artificial barriers — East Berlin by a wall, Israeli Jerusalem by barbed wire entanglements. Both could profit by economic, cultural, and religious interchange.

The visit of Pope Paul will help in some degree to break these barriers.

HE WILL also break one set of these oldest and most rigid barriers in the Christian world when he meets with Patriarch Athenagoras of Constantinople, leader of the Greek Orthodox Church. For 900 years these two churches have been so bitter toward each other that when the Turks threatened the city of Constantinople, then capital of the Greek empire, the Greeks proclaimed: "We would rather have the Turkish fez hung over Constantinople than the Catholic tiara." The Greeks got their wish.

Today one small step in better relations between these two largest bodies of the Christian faith is being taken as Pope Paul and Athenagoras meet in Jerusalem.

So is achieved better understanding in the religious world. If these ancient religious prejudices can be healed, perhaps President Johnson is not too optimistic in hoping that some of the East-West prejudices in the political world can be healed too.

Gigantic Political Struggle Forecast

To the Editor:

Sen. Goldwater's announced candidacy for President marks the beginning of a gigantic political struggle second to none in our history. It begins with an intra-party battle for power and influence which dramatizes the liberal and conservative differences within the GOP.

Goldwater's nomination at Frisco would then bring to voters the clear choice of a conservative Republican or a Democrat who is inextricably tied to the New Frontier. For the first time in many years we would see a vigorous and enlightening exposition of these two conflicting viewpoints in debate stripped of me-too-ism, fence riding and political platitudes.

I believe that Americans want and deserve that kind of a confrontation before going to the polls to elect the next President, in November. As a supporter of Barry Goldwater, I know he will bring that kind of political debate to the political arena if he is nominated.

For many months the intra-party struggle has been shaping up with activity in the east and centering largely around Gettysburg. The "modern Republicans" have been beating the bushes in search of a standard bearer for their liberal viewpoint to no avail. Gettysburg has lately begun to take on the appearance of Memorial Stadium at kickoff time with all those balloons wafting off into the blue. The political realities still remain and Gen. Eisenhower knows all too well that a Republican victory is impossible without the active support of conservative elements in this country.

Complicating the GOP struggle is the fact that Goldwater has been an effective fund raiser and campaigned aggressively for the ticket throughout the nation in previous elections. Goldwater, while chairman of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee, built up a tremendous allegiance among party leaders which accounts for his strength among these people. Furthermore, he has been the voice of opposition to the Democratic administration whenever its foreign or domestic policies were in conflict with long held GOP principles. He carried on this battle almost single-handedly from his Senate seat and from speaking platforms all over the country.

But his greatest and most significant strength is found in the grass roots organizations that have cropped up everywhere. They were formed even before his announced candidacy set up to work for his nomination in San Francisco. None of the other prospective nominees have this sort of an effort ready to go to work in their behalf. It is a most unusual political activity and reflects what a formidable opponent Sen. Goldwater presents to those who would seek the nomination.

Sen. Goldwater is an unusual man in public life bringing to the political scene a sense of honesty, fairness, and frankness that is like a breath of fresh, spring air. As spokesman for the conservative viewpoint, he is its most eloquent and effective exponent. He will bring his views to the public with a clarity and simplicity that will enable everyone to understand the issues in this election campaign.

2 Major Heart Conditions

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a rheumatic heart? How does it differ from other heart trouble? — F. S.

Rheumatic heart, belying its name, hasn't much if anything to do with rheumatism or arthritis.

There are two major categories of heart trouble, plus a number of others which aren't as frequent. The two are:

1—Blood circulation to the heart muscle is impaired, so the organ can't work as vigorously as it should. This is what causes the "heart attack" type of case.

2—The heart muscle may be essentially all right, but there is trouble in the heart itself. The valves may not be functioning properly.

RHEUMATIC HEART is the second category. The patient gets a streptococcus infection. The germ, before it is thrown off, may (not always does) inflame one or more of the valves in the heart. It may affect the muscle as well, at times.

Then as the inflamed areas heal, scar tissue forms. This, in turn, prevents the valves from opening and closing as precisely as they should. In order to pump as much blood as is needed, the heart has to work harder. In time the heart tires because of this extra load.

The damage may be small or great. The consequences of rheumatic heart may be trifling, or may be fatal. Or anything in between.

RHEUMATIC HEART usually begins in childhood or in early life, possibly because some people are sensitive to that type of infection. But most certainly repeated attacks by the germ, repeated cases of rheumatic fever, multiply the damage.

The other main type of heart disease, involving circulation to the heart muscle through the coronary arteries (hence the term "coronary" for a sudden heart attack) is usually confined to older people.

I'll add this simile. Compare the heart to a pump supplying water to a farmhouse in the country. If valves or washers are defective, the motor of the pump has to work overtime to push enough water through the leaky system. That's rheumatic heart disease.

ON THE OTHER hand, the pump itself may be good, but the electric motor which runs it has a defective winding or some faulty contacts, and can't run strongly enough. That is the second type.

If the pump part is faulty, and the motor is overloaded too much, in time the motor overheats and has trouble, too.

Dr. Molner is happy to receive readers' questions, and whenever possible uses them in his column. However, due to the great volume of mail received daily, Dr. Molner regrets he cannot answer letters individually.

6 Watkins Employees
Total Up 253 Years

Six Winona employees of Watkins Products, Inc., whose combined service totaled 253 years, retired from the firm at the end of last month.

The average period of employment for the six was 42 years. Each of the retiring workers received gifts from fellow employees.

HENRY H. GJERDRUM, 1710 Gilmore Ave., retired as cost department manager after 43 years. He joined Watkins as a member of the general accounting department Dec. 6, 1920, and in 1924 was transferred to the cost department. He has visited all Watkins manufacturing branches and corresponded with and established foreign distributors and import points. During World War II Gjerdrum handled the company's government contracts.

He will remain with the firm for several months this year to close 1963 accounting and assist in reorganization of department functions. Gjerdrum is a native of Lanesboro, Minn., was graduated from high school there and attended Wisconsin Business University, La Crosse. He and his wife, Margaret, have one son, Dale. Gjerdrum's hobbies include fishing, hunting and photography.

MRS. INEZ ZENKE, supervisor in the data processing department, had been employed in the billing department since Jan. 10, 1921. She was appointed supervisor in 1960 when new processing equipment was introduced in the department.

Mrs. Zenke was employed part-time during World War II and later returned on a full-time basis. She and her husband, Eric, live in Goodview and her favorite hobby is bowling.

HAROLD HUNTLEY, Fountain City Rt. 2, Wis., monotype operator in the printing department, observed his 43rd anniversary with the firm two days prior to his retirement. Huntley, whose father, Frank, also was a printer and composing room foreman at Watkins for nine years, started as a clerk in the composing room in 1920. Two years later he was promoted to compositor and typesetter and continued in this capacity until 1955 when he took over operation of the monotype.

A native of Winona and father of four children, Huntley plays the banjo and guitar and played professionally in an orchestra for some 20 years.

JOSEPH LELWICA, 173 Chalfield St., bottling machine operator, would have completed 42 years with Watkins Jan. 24. He was born in Winona, attended St. Stanislaus and Cotter High schools and was first employed by Watkins in the stores department. He and his wife, Frances, have four children, three of them former Watkins employees. He enjoys watching baseball, football and basketball.

ANTONE B. GUENTHER, 713 Harriet St., began his 43rd year at Watkins as a compounding last March 17. He joined Watkins in 1921, mixing ointments, shampoo, soap powders, desserts, minerals and spices. Prior to that he was a compounding at A. M. Ramer Co., a manufacturer of chocolates, for eight years.

During 26 years of union activity he served 14 years as union president at Watkins and McConnon & Co., was a delegate to the Central Labor Union for 26 years and a three-term president.

Guenther attended Winona schools, DeForest Institute of Radio, Sound and Television and the University of Minnesota. At the latter he studied labor-management and industrial relations. He and his wife, Elizabeth, have two sons.

ANNA DEGNAN, 167 E. 5th St., retired after 41 years, serving first in the mailing department and later in the billing department. She was transferred to the accounting department in 1935 and was employed there since.

She had been a bookkeeper but more recently wrote vouchers. She was born in Winona and attended public and parochial schools here.

CHATFIELD, Minn. — Another special election will be held in the Chatfield school district Jan. 17 to vote on a $240,000 bond issue to construct and furnish an addition to the elementary school. The first vote Nov. 22 was defeated by a small margin.

The advisory board of the Chatfield Community Development Council has voted 12-1 to endorse the board's previous unanimous decision to support passage of the bond issue.

World's 10 Best Dressed Women Cited for Elegance

By JOY MILLER

AP Women's Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Except for a pretty young queen who once said she wasn't interested in fashion, the women on the new best dressed list are old hands at being cited for elegance.

Names of the decorous dozen winners of the annual international poll were announced over the weekend. Nine have appeared on the list before and two have received the next-best plaudit — the best-dressed committee's citation as "outstanding leaders of contemporary taste in dress."

Then there is 25-year-old Queen Farah Pahlavi of Iran who told a reporter two years ago that she was not interested in fashion but in art.

Nonetheless, she has not been elevated into the front rank of fashion by the style experts who balloted for the best-dressed list of 1963.

Heading the list is Mexican-born Mrs. Loel Guinness, wife of an international banker and often called "the ultimate in elegance." Last year she ran second to Mrs. John F. Kennedy. The former First Lady was dropped from consideration for the current list out of respect for her mourning.

New to the inner-dress circle this year are Mrs. T. Charlton Henry, a social leader in Philadelphia for many years, and blonde Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who is the former Jean Harvey of Chicago.

Repeaters on the list are: Princess Alexandra of Kent, who used to be called the pin-money princess because she and her mother, the Duchess of Kent, far from being royally rich dressed from the ready-to-wear racks in British chain stores.

Mrs. David Bruce, wife of the U.S. ambassador to Great Britain, who prefers understated American clothes.

Mrs. Walther Moreira Salles, young, witty wife of Brazil's ambassador to the United States.

Dina Merrill, blonde Hollywood actress who is married to socially prominent Stanley Rumbough Jr.

Baroness Henry Thyssen-Bornemisza.

Gloria Vanderbilt, actress and onetime famous debutante.

Princess Stanislas Radziwill, Mrs. Kennedy's younger sister Lee, who married a Polish prince and lives in London.

Mrs. Charles Wrightsman, wife of an oil millionaire and girlhood friend of Mrs. Kennedy.

To make room for newcomers, women who have been listed three years running are boosted to a Hall of Fame. The three new members are Mrs. Gianni Agnelli of Turin, Italy, wife of the head of the Fiat Co.; Mrs. Herve Alphonse, wife of the French ambassador to the United States; and Mrs. John Barry Ryan III, former fashion magazine editor and New York broker's wife.

Olstad-Heiden Vows Spoken at Hart Church of St. John

RUSHFORD, Minn. — Miss Ione Kathleen Heiden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Heiden, Rushford, and Claire Harlan Olstad, Houston, Minn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Olstad, Rushford, were united in marriage Dec. 28.

The wedding was in St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Hart, Minn. The Rev. Edwin Friedrich officiated. Organist was Mrs. Friedrich and Miss Betty Heiden sang.

THE BRIDE wore a gown of white velvet, designed and made by her mother. It was styled in the "stem" silhouette with a slim long skirt. The snug bodice had long fitted sleeves, trimmed with seed pearls at the points over the hands, as was the rounded neckline. A crown of pearls held her bridal veil. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

Mrs. Leland McMillen, Rochester, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Merlin Jameson, Rushford, and Mrs. Emil Cordes, Spokane, Wash., sisters of the bride.

They wore floor-length gowns of royal-blue velvet, with three-quarter length sleeves and scoop necklines. They carried bouquets of calla lilies.

BEST MAN was Dale Olstad and groomsmen were Lester Heiden and Ardel Rasmussen. Ushers were Clifford Heiden, Lancaster, Wis., and Glenn Kruekenberg, Bixby, Minn.

A dinner and reception was held in the church parlors. The couple left on a honeymoon trip to Florida and upon their return will be at home at Houston, Route 3.

A bridal dinner was given after rehearsal Dec. 26 at Rushford Lutheran Church.

Mrs. Gaylord Brown gave a shower at her home for the bride.

Both young persons are graduates of Rushford High School. The bride is employed at IBM.

Johnson Asks Exams for All Young Men 18

By GARTH JONES

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson ordered a new effort Saturday to correct physical and mental flaws found among young men eligible for military service.

Johnson directed that most men reaching 18 be given physical and mental tests, starting July 1. And he said those who fail will be allowed to enter new, voluntary rehabilitation programs.

"This will be the most important human salvage program in the history of our country," Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz told newsmen.

The President released a report of a task force on manpower conservation with the comment that it revealed "a situation more serious and more extensive than has been our understanding."

Findings included estimates that one-third of all men in the nation reaching 18 years of age will be found unqualified for induction in the armed forces, about half being rejected for medical reasons and the remainder flunking mental tests. The report also said the majority of those disqualified appear to be the victims of inadequate education and insufficient health services.

"The findings of the task force are dramatic evidence that poverty is still with us, still exacting its price in spoiled lives and failed examinations," the President said in a statement accompanying the report. "For entirely too many Americans the promise of American life is not being kept. In a nation as rich and productive as ours this is an intolerable situation."

Johnson said he will shortly present to Congress a program designed "to attack the roots of poverty in our cities and rural areas."

The President gave two orders, effective next July 1, designed to discover job training and education deficiencies as soon as possible and correct many of them.

The Department of Defense and the Selective Service System are directed to give physical and mental examinations to most youths reaching 18, as soon as possible. Most youths eligible for military service are not examined until they are 22 or 23. The President stressed that early examination did not mean earlier induction into service.

Second, the President directed the secretaries of labor and welfare to set up rehabilitation programs to correct the physical and mental defects found in the examinations.

Wirtz told reporters the rehabilitation programs would not be compulsory "but we have found in the task force report that most of those with deficiencies want help to correct them."

Good measurements to remember for Chicken Tetrazzini: use 2 cups of medium white sauce with 1/2 pound thin spaghetti (cooked) and 2 to 2 1/2 cups diced cooked chicken. Turn into a baking dish, sprinkle generously with grated cheese and heat in the oven.

By GRETCHEN L. LAMBERTON

EVERYONE I know has started dieting after the long double holiday with all its rich turkey, pies and puddings, candies, and, worst of all from the standpoint of dieting, those divine Christmas cookies. My intentions are excellent, but my sense of thrift keeps getting in the way. For just as I am about to embark on a diet and take off that bulging rubber tire that has appeared these last weeks, I note a dish of creamed turkey, a piece of pie and some gooey fudge sitting in the refrigerator that simply must be used up. And of course there are those marvelous Christmas cookies—

There seem to be two schools of thought on this dieting after the Christmas holidays. One school thinks the diet resolution goes into effect promptly on Jan. 1. The other faction says, "Whoever heard of starting a diet on Wednesday, and of course the only logical thing is to start on the first day of the week, Monday." Which would be Jan. 6, and I am of this school of thought. For it makes sense that any disagreeable project ought to start on a Blue Monday.

Several years ago just for fun a National Indigestion Week was proclaimed to run between Christmas and New Year's. It was, I believe, set up by the National Baking Soda Institute, and I've just received a notice that this "Week" has been extended into a National Indigestion Season to run between Thanksgiving and New Year's. This would take in more varieties of holiday parties and would sell more indigestion remedies.

If you are planning to attend the New York World's Fair this year try to catch this stupendous project. The city of Portland, Ore., is making a gift to New York of the most colossal cake ever baked, and will transport it across the continent in a fleet of refrigerated trucks. Leaving Portland on May 15 it will arrive in New York June 1 and will be taken to the plaza of Rockefeller Center where it will be assembled into a one-block square cake and displayed for three days. Then it will be served to some 500,000 visitors until it is all gone—an estimated two days.

Models from Oregon dressed in red, white and blue chiffon Statue of Liberty costumes will accompany the cake to New York and will serve it to guests. This cake, which was dreamed up by a Watkins Co. customer, Mrs. Mardi Jacobs, will weigh 42,275 pounds and is valued at more than $500,000—figures based on materials plus labor to make, assemble and deliver the cake. This cake will consist of 50 separate sections of seven-foot square parts, each one of which will represent a state and will be frosted in the state color and decorated with appropriate state symbols. Two thousand pounds of gumdrops will be used to make 250 candy roses, each flower requiring an hour and twenty minutes to create. The frosting will weigh two tons. But to me the most staggering figure is that 12 GALLONS of Watkins vanilla will be used.

Here is the recipe for this fabulous cake in case you want to bake one:

This recipe includes the ingredients for the batter, filling, icing, and top decorations. This also includes the lumber foundations, etc.

3,700 pounds cake flour; 4,610 pounds granulated sugar; 7,676 pounds powdered sugar; 235 pounds baking powder; 4,504 pounds high-ratio shortening; 55 pounds fresh butter; 161 pounds salt; 368 pounds powdered milk; 50 gallons whole milk; 23 pounds tartar cream; 324 pounds powdered glucose; 25 pounds starch; 920 pounds whole canned eggs; 1,462 pounds egg whites (canned); 1,200 fresh whole eggs (100 doz.); 3,128 pounds cold water—6,256 cups water; 1,539 pounds hot water—3,078 cups water; 160 1/2 pounds hot water—320 cups water (for top decoration); 12 gallons Watkins vanilla—entire cake; 400 pounds white shredded coconut; 2,000 pounds fancy candies; a. 400 pounds rock candy; b. 400 pounds large gum drops; c. 400 pounds small gum drops; d. 800 pounds assorted fancy candies for top decorations; 1 gallon each food coloring, pink, green, yellow; 1,000 feet plastic drop cloth for each state.

Weight—42,275 pounds—Does not include top decoration wooden platforms, cardboard, and stuffed animals or decorative figures for each state; Serve—500,000 servings. Each state will be seven feet square—individually decorated to represent its main resources, scenic beauty, etc.

the Army at Fort Hood, Tex. Roger Morken and David Benson have enlisted in the Army Air Force and will be stationed at Amarillo, Tex. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Morken and Mr. and Mrs. Alden Benson.

Pfc. David J. Peterson has been on furlough at the John Peterson home after graduating with honor from Ordnance School, Aberdeen, Md., and has been stationed at Fort Bragg, N.C. He left Dec. 21 from New York via plane and is scheduled to be stationed in Ashaffenberg, Germany.

Man Borrows Parking Lot, Collects $20
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A young man broke into a downtown parking lot office. Cars began to pull into the lot. Pretending he was an employee, he parked the cars and collected 50 cents from each driver.

Police said Sunday the man fled with about $20 in parking fees and the change from a soft drink machine.

One customer said the man was "very polite, parked the cars well and seemed to really know what he was doing," police reported.

Congressman's Auto Robbed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Thieves broke into Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez' car Sunday and took $450 in cameras and undeveloped photographs of the late President John F. Kennedy, taken during his trip to Texas.

Recent film of President Lyndon B. Johnson also was taken. Gonzalez said thieves pried open a window vent to enter his locked car on a downtown street.

Teachers Asked To Quit Smoking

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP)—Dutch school teachers are being asked to quit smoking in their schools as an example to their students. The annual Congress of the Dutch Teachers Federation voted 340-12, with 5 abstentions, for a resolution making the request of all the nation's teachers.

House of the Week

Squared Ranch Offers Space, Economy

By JULES LOH

If you economize in building a new home, you'd expect to give up something somewhere. But you don't have to.

In this ranch house, H-10 in the House of the Week Series, you can have your economy cake and still keep plenty of room to eat it in.

ARCHITECT Samuel Paul has built economy into a spacious 8-room design by sticking to a rectangular shape. This allows a simpler framing system. Further economies have been achieved by adding an attractive carport instead of a garage and not digging a basement. Wide use of masonry also cuts down maintenance.

Yet there are many bonus features: a family room that opens onto a screened porch and can be joined with it in summer through sliding doors; dining and living rooms kept out of the traffic flows and a kitchen that opens through a serving area to breakfast bar and the family room.

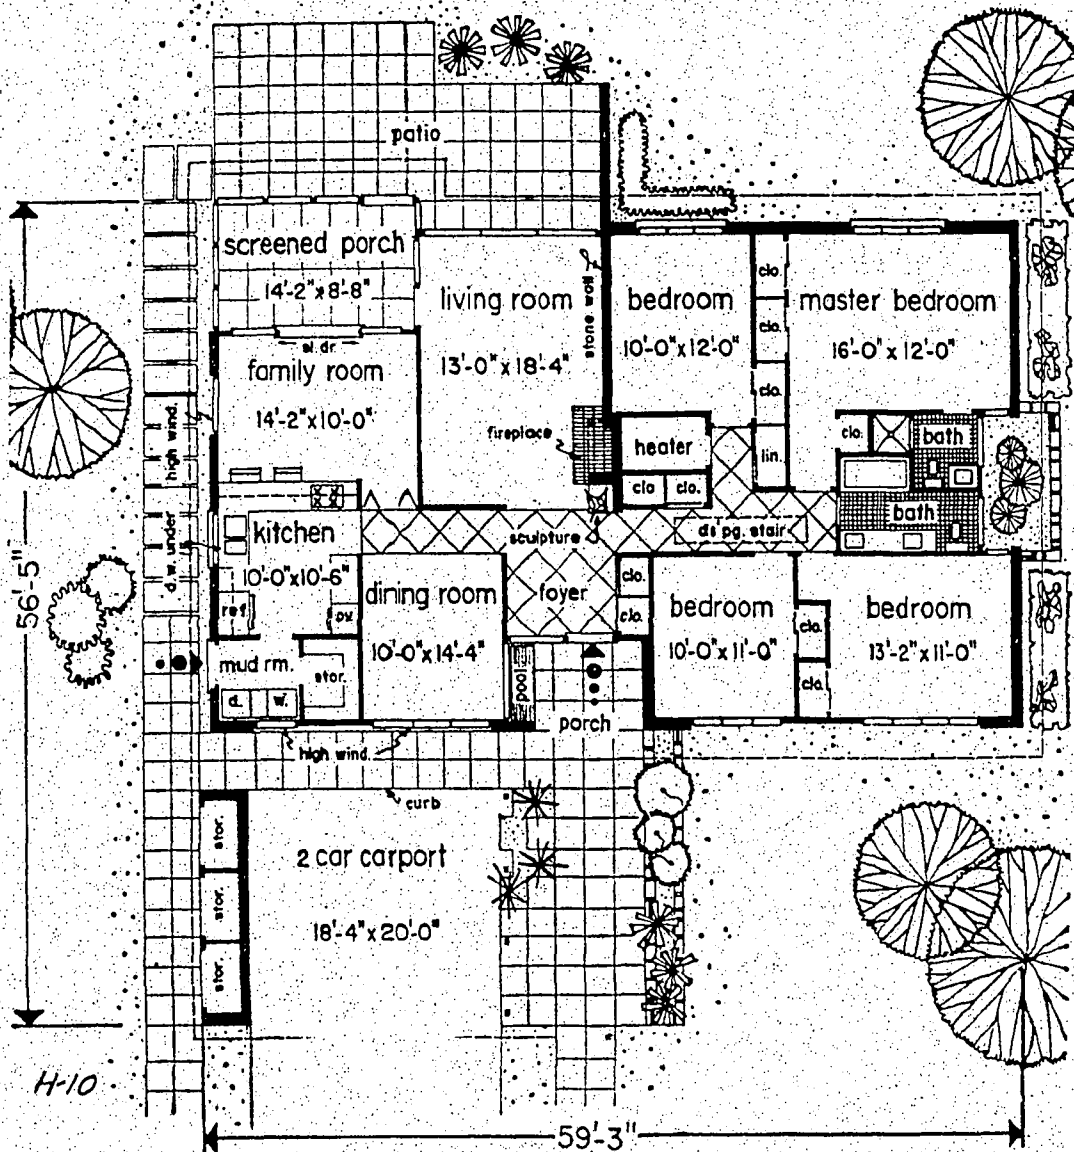

The basic shape of the house also means that it can fit comfortably into a 75-foot lot yet a spacious layout is keyed to privacy.

WINDOW exposure is largely into the back and front yards. A novel inset on the gable end of the house permits cross ventilation in the two larger bedrooms yet windows face each

SIZEABLE MONEYSAVER: Box-shaped layout permits savings in construction while allowing space for four bedrooms as well as living, dining and family rooms. Costs are cut by eliminating basement but storage is provided in attic, 10 closets, laundry storage area and in carport.

FLOOR PLANS: The 1,801 square feet of this ranch are arranged in a rectangular shape to give maximum size and privacy on a 75-foot front lot. Both living and family rooms have access to porch for expanded summer living.

How to Build, Buy Or Sell Your Home

Full study plan information on this architect-designed House of the Week is included in a 50-cent baby blueprint. With it in hand you can obtain a contractor's estimate.

You can order also, for $1, a booklet called "YOUR HOME—How to Build, Buy or Sell it." Included in it are small reproductions of 16 of the most popular House of the Week issues.

Send this coupon to the Daily News or you may purchase the plans or the booklet at the information counter at the Daily News.

other instead of the neighbors.

The house measures 59 feet 3 inches by 56 feet 5 inches enclosing 1,801 square feet, four bedrooms, porch, patio and two baths.

A stone wall makes a handsome expanse along one side of the living room and out into the yard where it shields one end of the patio. There is also access from the living room into the back porch.

Kitchen work is facilitated by generous use of counter tops as well as a walk-in storage closet handy but out of the way. The closet opens off the combination mud-laundry room.

STORAGE needs are amply served by a full-length area in the carport, 10 closets in the bedroom wing and attic space reached by a concealed stair located in the bedroom hall.

There are two baths with a double wash basin in one for multi-child use.

Peanut Brittle Routs Bandit

CINCINNATI (AP)—It could only happen in a nut house. A female clerk wielding a pound of peanut brittle routed a hold-up man.

Police said Mrs. Gladys McKinney of Covington, Ky., was working at Morrow's Nut House Sunday night when a man asked for two pounds of peanut brittle. She put one pound on a scoop scale. The man pulled a revolver and told her to forget the rest of the candy and open the cash register.

Mrs. McKinney threw the scoopful of peanut brittle in the man's face and screamed. He fled.

Shortly before midnight police said they had picked up a suspect. They declined to identify him.

District Building Total Increases

The dollar volume of building permits issued at 232 reporting centers in the six-state district served by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis amounted to $572,814,268 during the first 11 months of 1963, the bank reported today.

During the same period the year before the total was $523,796,400.

Minnesota's permit valuation for the January-November period was $38,713,279, compared with 1962's $29,490,185.

Comparative data for selected Minnesota and Wisconsin cities:

	January-November—1963	1962
WINONA	$1,765,892	$2,571,352
Faribault	1,882,767	1,433,511

BATHROOM BEAUTY

Enamel is the best finish for the bathroom because the walls and ceilings must be able to resist great amounts of moisture.

COLOR AND DANGER

Colored paints are being used extensively on the farm and in industry to signify danger areas on machinery and heavy equipment. A color in contrast to body color, or stripes of two contrasting colors, are among the methods used to designate cutting edges, gear openings and guards. Yellow and black or orange and black stripes are widely used.

H-10 Statistics

An 8-room ranch containing four bedrooms, two full baths, living and dining rooms, kitchen, laundry, storage room, attic storage, family room, porch, patio and 2-carport. Dimensions are 59'3" by 56'5" covering 1801 square feet.

Building Year Off to Slow Start in City

Two building permits, both for interior remodeling and with a combined estimated construction cost of $3,000, were issued at the city engineer's office last week.

One was taken by Harding Beauty School for installation of a toilet and partitions in its building at 78 W. 3rd St., adjacent to the school. Now vacant, the building formerly was occupied by Stager Jewelry Store.

Logan Brickson, La Crosse, is the contractor and cost was estimated at $2,500.

THOMAS BUSCOVICK, 467 Huff St., drew a permit for a $500 remodeling job at his home.

The first week of the year — a short one — produced a dollar volume of building permits far below that recorded for the first week of 1963 when permits totaling $695,000 were written.

The big one at that time was one issued for construction of the new Central Methodist Church which accounted for $675,000 of the total.

Last week's oil burner permits went to Sievers Heating & Air Conditioning for A. M. Oskamp, 811 Gilmore Ave., and Winona Heating & Ventilating Co. for M. L. Boerst, 1815 Gilmore Ave., and Westfield Golf Club, 1460 W. 5th St.

Permits for GAS-FIRED installations:

Winona Heating & Ventilating Co. for Sather Winona Homes, Inc., at 811, 785 and 803 Clark's Lane; Leo Prochowitz, 1002 E. Broadway; Mrs. Theodore Lester, 453 Macemon St.; M. L. Boerst, 1815 Gilmore Ave.; Frank Chapman, 611 Huff St., and Westfield Golf Club. Kraning's Sales & Service, for Ben Safranek, 558 E. Sanborn St., and John Januschka, 1517 W. Howard St. Sievers Heating & Air Conditioning, for Donald Orr, 117 Stone St., and L. J. Casper, for 453 and 526 Westdale Ave.

BLISTER-RESISTANT PAINTS

Moisture is the cause of much unsatisfactory paint service. Under certain conditions, the effects of moisture can be controlled best by using special blister-resistant paints. They may be oil or water-base paints and must be used as directed to obtain their maximum efficiency.

Dark Paneling Usually Better

By VIVIAN BROWN

Some people make bad use of wall paneling. It shouldn't be put up as an afterthought unless everything used in the room conforms to it.

Light paneling is more difficult to work with than dark paneling which has a built-in warmth that gives a head start in established coziness.

A READER asks whether dark wood paneling would look depressing in a small room. It all depends on what other furnishings are used in the room and what colors are used.

One or two walls of dark wood lends a cozy sort of mellowness even to a small room, especially if there is a fireplace. Dark wood requires some bright touches but even this can be dark warm reds and golds used in papers and paints.

These colors can enrich the wood in a fashion that gives the entire room a delightful atmosphere.

VIVID COLORS — turquoise, orange and hot pink — can liven up dark woods also, but this is another kind of look, and may call for a different kind of decorating. It depends on the look you want to achieve in the total room, and the furnishings that are used.

One dreadful effect that is the result of light paneling in the living area is that it can never assist in giving the room a lift. This is especially true when blonde furniture is used with it or very light upholstery.

People attracted to light paneling often use it, for some reason or other, very faded colors like dreamy blues or washed-out yellows which further deflate the room.

ONE PROBLEM in redoing walls is in using some of the new materials such as tickings, grass cloths and burlaps that are popular now. One must be especially careful to get instructions for the specific material used, instead of depending on the paper hanger to know all the answers.

Burlap must be applied with special adhesives and these new wall coverings are so new many paper hangers haven't encountered them. Directions for hanging fabrics should come from stores which sell the fabric, to be on the safe side.

SHOULD PAINTINGS be bought with the idea of matching them to houses and furniture? That's a query from one homemaker.

"My husband has acquired a couple of Art Nouveau pictures that don't do a thing for our living room except look peculiar, and they certainly don't go with our ranch house, somehow. He loves them. Don't you think people should have art that looks good or not at all? Shouldn't it match the furniture and the house?"

Art is a question of taste, and perhaps Art Nouveau is your husband's type of art. There is no rule of thumb on what type of art goes with what. People use traditional and abstract paintings together in contemporary or traditional homes.

Good paintings are at home anywhere, of course. It could be that one or two additional paintings used with Art Nouveau may make them more interesting by contrast.

QUESTION: We have a dining room bureau which we want to refinish. It is a light colored wood which we have been told is birch. The present finish appears to be varnish.

Is it necessary to remove this finish in order to put on a new one? We are considering using lacquer because of the beautiful lacquer finish we saw recently on a similar bureau in a friend's house.

ANSWER: Don't rush into this job until you consider a number of facts. First, if the present finish is in need of attention, the chances are it should be taken off with varnish remover no matter what the new finish is to be.

Secondly, you should never apply lacquer over any other type of finish because of the danger that the solvent in the lacquer will cause the old finish to blister and curl.

Third, there is a certain knack to the application of lacquer, by brush or spray. You should first practice using lacquer on scrap wood or some less ambitious project before tackling good furniture.

Remember that the finish on your friend's bureau probably was done professionally. But if it happens that it was a do-it-yourself job, why not get some tips from your friend.
